Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 11 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine but remaining cold.

This Evening and Tonight:
Very cold overnight, with a widespread hard frost developing under clear spells, especially in rural areas. There is an outside chance of the odd snow flurry in Norfolk tio end the night, but most places should stay fine. Minimum temperature -8 deg C (18 deg F).

Friday:
Cold throughout and becoming breezy. Perhaps one or two fleeting snow flurries remain possible in the north, although most parts should stay fine with sunny spells. Brightest in the west. Maximum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Fine at first, but cold, increasingly cloudy and windy Saturday. Coastal gales Sunday, with sleet and perhaps briefly freezing rain spreading east later. Unsettled but less cold from Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.